

AOP-8-1-07-10 (Revised 8/13/13)
Teaching Load Reduction Policy:

Policy Statement: At Troy University a measurable portion of the faculty workload is the teaching load, the teaching load is defined in terms of department, or school, or college teaching credit hours and under normal circumstances will be defined related to the specific term structure per full-time faculty per annual academic year. Heavier-than-normal involvement in non-teaching activities, when requested by the University, may warrant an adjustment in a faculty member's workload, including, if necessary, a temporary or permanent reduction in teaching hours. The University's request for such involvement by a faculty member must be agreed to by the faculty member, the department chair, the Dean of the College, and the Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs.

In order for a reduction of teaching load to be considered for a faculty member, there must be agreement between the department chair and the dean of the college.

The request for a reduction of teaching load shall be initiated at the program/departmental level. If a reduction in load is considered, the department chair/program associate will submit a Teaching Load Reduction form to the Dean, for review. This form must be submitted to the Dean of the College not later than eight weeks prior to the effective term of the load reduction. The Dean will review the request and if supported, will forward the request to the Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs for review. This form must be submitted to the Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs not later than four weeks prior to the effective term of the load reduction.

A letter of agreement specifying all conditions and length of time associated with the reduction of the teaching load will be executed by the respective chair and faculty member. The draft letter should set forth any conditions of the reduction of teaching load request, the effective start date and stop date, (if applicable) of the load reduction, and specifically any issues related to the teaching load reduction.

The request will be acted upon by the Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs in consultation with the dean, and if appropriate, the administrative officer who will be supervising the faculty member's administrative duties. Documentation of the agreement will be filed in the Department Chair/District Director's office as well as in the Dean of the College's office.
